The Legislature and Democratic Fears.

The Register is much troubled in spirit for fear the Republican majority in the legislature will do something partisan. The Democratic organ need have no fear concerning the outcome of the deliberations of the chosen representatives of the people at Charleston. They are there on the people's business and are a competent set of men.

The majority, charged with the responsibility for whatever is done, doubtless appreciates the advice of the minority organ, and will accept it for what it is worth. It must be admitted, however, that the Republican members of the legislature have shown no disposition to consult the advice of the Democratic press in party matters.

Seriously speaking, the INTELLIGENCER believes it knows whereof it speaks, when it assures its Democratic friends that there is no cause to apprehend that the majority party in the state legislature is going to make a fool of itself, as the Democratic press and politicians hope it will. That there will be party measures introduced and passed is true, but in all instances, the INTELLIGENCER believes, they will be in the interest of the state and in the direction of reforms. Even a Democratic governor, who seems to be a fair-minded man, may be brought to admit their merit.

The INTELLIGENCER does not know of a single Republican member so radical as to desire to "tear things wide open," or to depart from the conservative, business like course advocated by the level-headed men who are at the helm. The Register's assumption that anything else than a wise party policy will be pursued by the Republicans seems to be the result of a determination in advance to view their acts through partisan glasses.

Suppose the Register lay aside its prejudice for awhile and give the legislature a chance to speak for itself. It is composed of men who are ardent believers in the future greatness of West Virginia, and are citizens who have their welfare at heart. The majority are also Republicans who know how to make wise use of power. Democrats who anticipate anything else will be disappointed.

Similar Circumstances.

We are told by the Washington correspondents that Senator Jones, the silver man, and Senator Camden, a gold standard man, called at the treasury on Saturday, and had a long conference with the secretary, and thence went to the President himself; that they were given an immediate audience, and for a long time the President and the two senators, representing opposite elements of the party, discussed the situation with regard to currency legislation from various points of view.

The dispatches go on to state that Mr. Cleveland was freely told that no measure could be passed that did not, in a very material way, recognize silver. It is stated that at the conference the Jones bill was discussed in detail, and that the two senators left the white house "thoroughly familiar with the ideas of the President, that such a measure, if effected by Congress, would be approved by the President."

These whole proceedings and the statements made concerning them in the press, are strangely like the proceedings and the statements of the press just previous to the introduction of the compromise or Gorman tariff measure in the senate. It will be recalled that certain senators then asured the country, and they thought that they were themselves assured, that they were "familiar with the ideas of the President and Secretary Carlisle," and that the senate bill "would receive executive approval." It will also be recalled that these certain senators were afterward compelled, on the floor of the senate, to denounce the President for having deceived them.

The similarity of the circumstances is striking. An administration tariff bill was out of the question on account of Democratic opposition, and the President was appealed to to accept the senate amendments and save the cause from utter failure. He promised his approval of such a compromise, and was afterward charged before the country with having misled the senators with whom he had the conference. He finally withheld his approval.

Now an administration currency bill has met defeat, and a compromise measure is to take its place. Along with its introduction is a statement that the President has done precisely what he did pending the senate tariff amendments. There are certain Democratic senators who, in view of past experiences, will regard with suspicion any statements coming second-hand from the white house.

When administration measures are defeated, the President does not give up easily. The Great I Am in the white house is not given to acknowledging defeat by accepting compromises. In the meantime, the situation seems hopeless, for even if the President should make concessions, the chances for the incompetents at the other end of the avenue to agree among themselves are very poor.

Senator Hoar.
 Among the good men whom the Republicans have honored by re-electing to the United States senate is Hon. George F. Hoar, of Massachusetts. Senator Hoar has for many years been a leader in the senate and is recognized on both sides of the chamber as one of the ablest men in the body.

Better than all else, Senator Hoar stands before the country as an incorruptible man. His record is as pure as that of any man who ever sat in the national legislature. An aggressive party man, who never swerves from the political principles he believes to be right, he has been made the target of many a bitter political attack, but his most intensely partisan opponent has never assailed his integrity as a man or as a legislator.

Massachusetts has honored herself in again choosing this upright statesman and Republican leader to represent her in the United States senate.

One of the strange possibilities of life is demonstrated in the career of Miss May Yohe, the burlesque actress. She is the daughter of a poor iron moulder of Bethlehem, Pa., and was deprived of the advantages of education. Nevertheless she became an accomplished actress, and has just been married to Lord Francis Hope, of England. As Lord Francis is the only brother of the Duke of New Castle, the iron moulder's daughter may, some day, become a duchess. Of course, English aristocracy is dreadfully shocked at the prospect, but the American girl doesn't seem to care a snap of her finger about that feature of the matter.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean sent a reporter to write up a ball at the Auditorium hotel, and this is a sample paragraph from the description he let loose the next morning on a reading public that never did him any harm:

"Like a grim, impenetrable fortress of medieval times the Auditorium looked before the moon swung out like a silver lamp in the mid-midnight sky and cast around the gray tower and austere walls the soft, transforming tulle of its gowned hosts. Far out over the frozen waters of the lake gazed the deep windows from under their arched brows of fluted stone, as the great monument of Chicago's power flung out a challenge to the eastern world. High in air, the tower, like a mighty fortress, was presided over the changing pulse of Illinois, while the quick voice of the telegraph reported the condition of the weather to the listening town."

No wonder it snowed the next day!

PETER ROBEY has been sent to jail for two months for shouting "fire" in a Philadelphia theatre when there was no fire. He said he did it "just for fun." Robey should not have been sent to jail. The proper place to confine him is in a lunatic asylum, and he should be kept there for an indefinite term.

The seating of Mr. Ford, of Raleigh, who contested for the seat to which Mr. Prince held an illegal certificate, was a simple act of justice consummated by the house of delegates yesterday. A great wrong against the ballot box was righted, and the rights of the honest voters of Raleigh county vindicated.

THURSDAY will be the anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin. Were the great philosopher, statesman and "discoverer" of electricity living he would be 180 years old. What wonders have been wrought with electricity since he flew that kite more than a century ago.

The placing of Senator Whitaker at the head of the senate finance committee was a just recognition of that gentleman's business abilities. No man in the legislature is better equipped for the duties of this important committee.

SECRETARY CARLISLE is talked of for the governorship of Kentucky. If he gets it President Cleveland will have an opportunity to place a competent man at the head of the treasury department.

The presiding officers of both houses at Charleston have displayed excellent judgment in the arrangement of the standing committees.

Even in defeat the Democrats of the state are keeping up their family fight. Republicans now have their turn to laugh.

The feeling is steadily growing among all classes of people that Carlisle is a failure as secretary of the treasury.

It looks more and more as though we are to have a special session of Congress.

His Religious Faith.
 To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Sir:—Will you please state in the next issue of your valuable paper to what religious faith Stephen D. Elkins holds, and oblige MARTIN'S FERRY, C. O., January 14.

Answer.—Mr. Elkins is a member of the church of the Disciples, having joined that denomination while attending college.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

Handkerchiefs are all white this season. Those of fine sheer linen cambric, edged with Valenciennes lace, with small script initials or monogram in one corner, are considered the prettiest and daintiest.

At a recent congress in India, where nine languages were spoken by delegates, the discussions were carried on in English. A proposition has been brought forward lately to make English the missionary language of the world.

Charles H. Sharbridge, of San Jose, who bought in at auction for $300,000 the San Francisco Call, is the owner of the San Jose Mercury. He is thirty-six years old and began newspaper work as a carrier for the Clarksons on the Des Moines Register.

The oldest known specimen of the vine tree in the world is at Hildersheim, Hanover. It was planted more than one thousand years ago by Charlemagne in commemoration of a visit made by him to the ambassador of the Caliph Haroun al Raschid.

It is decidedly bad form to use a monogram crest or address on the envelope. It should be left plain. A little sachet powder may be placed among one's stationery, but to scent it up like a perfume shop is in wretched taste. A suggestion of violets or heliotrope is all one requires.

R. C. Powell and Charles Broadway Rouse were comrades in the confederate army. After the war Rouse went to New York and became a millionaire and Powell stayed in Atlanta, where he is a police officer. Every Christmas Mr. Rouse remembers his former comrade handsomely.

This country imports annually from France about 250,000 pounds of edible snails. They come to this country alive, rolled up in their natural fashion. Only the finest are exported to the United States, and they are worth, at the place of exportation, from $4.00 to about $4.80 per 1,000.

Of carnations the Daybreak, Scott and Kellar are the reigning beauties. But the time approaches rapidly, when, by some wonderful conception in flower-raising, this pretty blossom will be the size of the rose, with a beauty as grand, an odor as lasting. The lily has made for itself this season a new place, and will be grouped with orchids and violets for all decorative purposes.

Stamp collection has become a mania with many people, and like all manias has run to excess. The business has become so extensive that the printing and selling of facsimiles of United States and foreign stamps has been taken up. It is the opinion of the collector of the treasury that it is unlawful to have in possession or use plates for the printing of postage stamps. Philatelists contend that by printing facsimiles of stamps they are serving as educators of youth and prevent imposition.

MORNING SMILES.

Kawler.—It strikes me those articles of yours are so deep people will hardly be able to digest them. Scribbles.—O! that's all right. They are to go into patent insides.—Buffalo Courier.

TRILBY.

John Kendrick Bunt, in Harper's Weekly.

I came home late the other night, and as I paced the street.

A beggar man came up to me and begged, but not for meat.

"I ask a dime from you," said he, "lest I shall very ill be."

Before the morn I must have funds to go and purchase Trilby.

"Trilby, Trilby, everywhere: 'Tis Trilby here, 'tis Trilby there, And if the book I cannot see, I'll die of curiosity."

I got upon a cable car last week to go to biz, And amidst the clanging of the bells and of the cables' whiz.

The guard who took my fare remarked: "What do you think air, will be the estimate of future years of this new book called Trilby?"

"'Tis Trilby here, 'tis Trilby there; 'Tis Trilby, Trilby, everywhere: Upon the cars upon the street, 'Tis 'Trilby, Trilby,' all repeat."

Why, in election times I found the tendency the same. It made no difference how great the stake, how great the game.

If I should ask, "Will Morton, or the famous Mr. Hill be Our governor?" the answer came: "I cannot say." Read Trilby.

"'Twas Trilby here, 'twas Trilby there, 'Tis Trilby where I was at With Trilby this and Trilby that."

I went into a shop to buy a volume of Carlyle. The clerk, who was my friend, gave me a truly pleasing smile.

"Pray hush!" he said, "Pray whisper low, or testaciously still be! We've orders to arrest all those who ask for such Trilby."

"'Tis Trilby, Trilby, everywhere: 'Tis Trilby here, 'tis Trilby there, If you ask for Carlyle again, 'Tis 'Trilby, Trilby,' all repeat."

So here's to Little Hilce, and to Taffy and the Laird!

Here's to that beautiful friendship, to which nought can be compared.

And, oh, I pray the Powers, may Du Maurier's fine skill be Spared unto him for many a day to give us more like Trilby!

"'Tis Trilby, Trilby, everywhere On earth and on the golden stair, Where'er you stay, where'er you go, 'Tis Trilby, Trilby, Trilby O!"

STREET CAR TIE UP.

The Entire Electrical System of Brooklyn, With the Exception of One Road, Tied Up.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 14.—At 5 o'clock this morning all the trolley cars in Brooklyn were tied up, the employees refusing to take out the cars. Over 5,000 men quit work. This includes motormen, conductors, electricians, switchmen and others employed at the various power houses. All but one of the surface roads, and that a comparatively minor concern, are affected. It is claimed that the strike will yet extend to the lines of the Brooklyn Elevated Railway Company. The contract between the Kings county Elevated Railway Company and its employees is such that it is believed there can be no strike on that line. District Assembly 75, Knights of Labor, which has control of all the trolley line employees in Brooklyn, held meetings during the past few weeks, and after the meeting Saturday their executive committee waited upon President Lewis, of the Brooklyn Heights road, and again asked that he grant their demands. They discussed the question for three and a half hours in President Lewis' office and finally Mr. Lewis refused to grant their demands. The outcome of this was that the committee held another meeting and adjourned until last night. At last night's meeting, which ended at 1 o'clock this morning, it was decided to tie up all the roads in the city of Brooklyn with the exception of the Smith and Jay street line. This was done this morning, and not a car outside of the Smith and Jay street line is running.

The companies expected the men would go out this morning, and determined to anticipate them. They asked the electricians, about 1,000 in number, if they would take out the cars. Every one of them refused to do so. They were then told that there was no work for them. One foreman was asked if he was willing to take out a car. He refused, but was the only foreman to go out. This morning the people had to use the elevated roads. The trains were made up with extra cars to accommodate the rush, but the public was greatly inconvenienced.

The Court street line of the Brooklyn City Company ran out seven cars, beginning at 8 o'clock. The cars were manned, front and rear, by two policemen. There was no trouble. There was one car running on the Fifteenth street branch.

The entire police force, consisting of 1,700 men, is in readiness in case there should be any trouble.

The men's grievances and demands are thus stated: The state law provides that a day's work for employees of street railway companies shall consist of ten hours, within twelve consecutive hours. It is alleged that this law has been disregarded by the corporations, which have required the men to work eleven hours and even twelve hours, with no interval longer than ten minutes for lunch, and depriving them of that time in most instances. The wage rate agreed upon a year ago was $2 for the statutory day's work. The companies, it is alleged, have made no allowance for overtime. The men demand adherence to the law regarding hours in a day's work, or $2.25 for a day of twelve hours.

An address issued by the executive committee of district assembly 75 alleges that the trouble was precipitated by the Brooklyn Heights company in excluding their electric workers from work. The statement goes on to say that the trips on the road have been greatly increased since the introduction of the electrical system, and that the flagrant violation of the ten-hour law has mentally and physically incapacitated the men for their work. All the companies run trippers so that the men can make only from 40 to 80 cents a day. While the corporations are not allowed by law to run at a rate of speed of more than ten miles an hour, it is claimed their schedules are so arranged that the cars have to be run at a rate of speed of from fifteen to twenty miles an hour. In consequence nearly 100 fatal accidents have occurred since the trolley was introduced and countless injuries to passengers. The men desire to have the schedule so arranged that the cars can be run safely. The address is signed by Master Workman Connolly and the other members.

An official of one of the lines said: "The companies cannot afford to increase their expenses one dollar, and if the demands of the men were complied with there is not one of them which would not be driven into bankruptcy. Immense sums of money have been borrowed to equip the roads with the electrical systems and this money has got to be paid sooner or later."

There were but few cars running up to 11 o'clock. There is an occasional car on the Court street line of the Brooklyn City Company, and the Montague street line and elevated systems are running as usual.

ASSIST NATURE
 a little now and then, with a gentle, cleansing laxative, thereby removing offending matter from the stomach and bowels, and toning up and invigorating the liver and quickening its tardy action, and you thereby remove the cause of a multitude of distressing diseases, such as headaches, indigestion, biliousness, skin diseases, boils, carbuncles, piles, fistulas and maladies too numerous to mention.

If people would pay more attention to properly regulating the action of their bowels, they would have less frequent occasion to call for their doctor's services to subdue attacks of dangerous diseases.

That, of all known agents to accomplish this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are unequalled, is proven by the fact that once used, they are always in favor. Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular, not to foster constipation, as is the case with other pills. Hence, their great popularity with sufferers from habitual constipation, piles and indigestion.

THE LINK BREAKS!

The Awful Woe From One Weak Link

In a Chain Apparently Strong and Powerful!

The Giving Way of This One Link Wrecked the Ship.

If Only That One Link Had Been Strong.

Think for a Moment and See What All This Means.

A ship, in a fearful storm, was anchored by a single chain. The chain was large and apparently strong enough to hold. But, in the otherwise powerful chain, was one, single, weak link. The terrible strain was too much for the weak link; it broke and the ship was dashed to destruction on the rocks.

The strength of a chain is only up to its weakest link. So the strength of a person, whether physical or nerve strength, is only up to his weakest part or organ. If your nerves are weak, or your blood poor, if you suffer from insomnia or have indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, kidney or liver complaint, headache, neuralgia, or rheumatism, there is a weak spot in your system, which, if not cured, will surely cause you to break down.

You will never be well and strong until this weak place or organ is strengthened. It is fearfully dangerous to neglect any such weakness or ailment. Nobody realizes this better than Mrs. G. S. Cobb, a well-known lady residing at 334 Smith street, Providence, R. I.

"For five years I have been troubled with indigestion, kidney and liver trouble, severe nervous headaches and neuralgia. There was a terrible pain and pressure in my stomach, from which there was no relief until vomiting set in, when I vomited a slimy mucus."

"After these spells I would be completely prostrated for three or four days. Sometimes for three weeks at a time I could take no nourishment but lime water and milk. I lost forty pounds."

"Severe nervous headaches, at times having a duration of two weeks, would set in. A terrible, piercing pain would shoot in rapid succession through my head. There was a dreadful aching and throbbing through my back between my shoulders."

"In fact I was completely prostrated. I tried prominent physicians without relief, and was entirely discouraged. About this time I heard, through a friend, of Dr. Greene and the wonderful cures which he had wrought with his remedy, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy."

"I secured it and commenced using it, and the change which took place was wonderful. The terrible, racking pains through my head and shoulders have left me. Where I could eat nothing but the lightest kinds of foods, I can now eat anything without the slightest distress of any kind."

"The kidney and liver trouble has left me. In fact, my friends are surprised at my wonderful cure. I thank God and Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy for my new life, and would say to all sufferers, gather confidence and try this great remedy and you will surely be cured."

Oh, that persons complaining of any ailment would be guided by this sensible and valuable advice, and take this wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy! If they only knew what a healthy and happy life awaited them after using it, they would not hesitate a moment."

It will make a strong and well person of you just as surely as you take it. It will cure every one of those troubles and weaknesses which have bothered you so much. Just try it and see. Doctors recommend and advise its use. Why waste time in trying uncertain and untried remedies, when here is a physician's prescription, a discovery made by the greatest living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth street, New York City. If you take this medicine, you can consider yourself under Dr. Greene's direct professional care, and you can consult him or write to him about your case, freely and without charge. This is a guarantee that this remedy will cure, possessed by no other medicine in the world.
